

GPJS International Workshop

Organized by KUROIWA Taku, Daniel
ROJAS, Chiara RAMERO, Corinne
DENOYELLE, and Estelle DOUDET
Supported by the Consortium for Global
Japanese Studies

TOHOKU
UNIVERSITY

March
2023 | 16^{THU.}_{th} and 17^{FRI.}_{th}

Place

Tohoku University, Kawauchi-Minami Campus
(27-1 Kawauchi, Aoba-ku, Sendai, Miyagi 980-8576 Japan)

Multidisciplinary Research Building Room 209
(International Humanities) (文科系総合講義棟)

❖ For further details, please visit:
<https://gpjs.tohoku.ac.jp/event/overseas/detail---id-1062.html>

Oceans as places of exchange and imagination: Pacific, Atlantic, and the Indian Ocean

Based on the long-dated collaboration between researchers from Tohoku University and Grenoble Alpes University (TOGA-Project), as well as from the University of Lausanne, the International Graduate Program of Japanese Studies (GPJS) of Tohoku University will organize an international workshop, "Oceans as places of exchange and imagination: Pacific, Atlantic, and the Indian Ocean." We will share our knowledge about the cultural, economic, and political exchanges through oceans during history. Also, we will see how the oceans have inspired artistic and literary works and, on the contrary, how the oceans have been affected by human activities, especially in the modern period. Through these reflections and discussions, we hope to see the Japanese culture from a global point of view and reinforce our international academic relationship for the post-COVID-19 era.

Registration >> registration deadline: March 15th 2023
<https://forms.gle/Yx5g9k5XucoLih3j6>

Languages English and French

